WELCOME

Welcome to the 1st edition of our Violence Prevention newsletter.

Working together, MYA and the Merseyside Violence Reduction Partnership (MVRP) will be sending out monthly newsletters to support the practices and discussions that professionals are using and having with young people and their families around violence prevention.

Join us each month to explore current themes, view relevant resources and support services related to these themes, and explore free training available for you to support the mental health and wellbeing of your students.

Definition

Hate crimes involve hostility or violence towards someone because of who they are.

A hate crime is when a criminal offence takes places which is perceived by the victim, or any other person, to be motivated by hostility or prejudice based on a person's:
• Race or perceived race, skin colour, nationality, ethnicity or heritage.
• Religion or perceived religion, including people without a religious belief.
• Sexual orientation or perceived sexual orientation.
• Disability or perceived disability
• Gender identity including those who identify as transgender.

Hate crime can fall into one of three main categories: physical assault, verbal abuse, and incitement to hatred.

CONVERSATION STARTERS

Do you know the difference between a hate crime and a hate incident?

How could you be an active bystander to discrimination? What steps could you take to become an ally?

What impact could being a victim of hate crime have on a person's mental health?

Where do we learn beliefs and attitudes about discrimination and hate crime? Are these credible sources of information?
